PROFILO LONGITUDINALE PROGETTO

A wide-angle photograph showing a massive, multi-tiered stone structure, possibly a pyramid or a ziggurat, with several figures standing in front of it. The structure has multiple levels and is made of large, rectangular stones. The foreground shows some sparse vegetation and a few small figures for scale.

A wide-angle landscape photograph showing a vast, open field with rolling hills in the background under a clear blue sky.

A wide-angle photograph capturing a long bridge under construction. The bridge features several distinct spans supported by piers. A dense crowd of people is visible on both the left and right banks, watching the work. The sky above is filled with clouds.

A detailed pencil sketch of a caterpillar's head and prolegs. The head is small and rounded, with two large, dark, hook-like mouthparts (labrum and maxilla) extending forward. Behind the head are several pairs of prolegs, each ending in a pair of small, hook-like suckers (crochets). The body is segmented, and the overall drawing is done with fine lines and shading.
